NO DECISION.

Governor Oglesby will Decide this Evening.

Attempt of Anarchist Lingo to Kill Himself.

HE MAY LIVE TO HANG.

NO DECISION.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 10, 1 p. m.— Governor Oglesby has heard the appeals for mercy in the anarchist cases, but no decision has yet been given to the public.
There will probably be no announcement until late this evening, possibly by six o'clock. Inquiries at the executive office near which about 50 newspaper correspondents are collected, receive but one answer, "No news." There is nothing official.

Rumors are afloat to the effect that the sentences of Fielden, Schwab and Spies will be commuted.

The news of the action of the Governor in the cases will be received first in Chicago, delivered there by special messenger.

LINGO'S DEED.

The startling news was received in Deatur early this morning that Louis Lingo, one of the condemned anarchists, and the maker of the dynamite bombs that no doubt caused the Haymarket horror, blew his head off in his cell at Chicago by means of a dynamite cap that he put in his mouth and ignited with a candle. The full particulars are not at hand, but enough is learned to fully confirm the report, direct from Chicago. The cap is a small continuance that could be easily concealed.

It was in Lingo's cell that a nest of bombs was discovered last Sunday. Evidently the young man, who is but 23 years of age, had planned to blow up the entire jail, and he would have succeeded but for the timely discovery.

The excitement in Chicago is represented to be intense. It is equally so at Springfield where the friends of the other condemned men have been pleading for mercy.

In Deatur the news was received with general surprise. Some believe that there will be a general blow-up in Chicago tomorrow, the day set for the hanging.

LATER.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 10.—Lingo attempted to blow his head off with a dynamite cap shortly after nine o'clock this morning.

It is supposed the cap was smuggled to him by the death watch who was guarding him. The anarchist's head was terribly shattered. He was still alive at 12 o'clock to-day and may live to be hung to-morrow.

This morning the pay car on the Terre Haute & Peoria road started out on its regular monthly trip, going over the eastern division. General Manager Conklin and Cashier West will handle the cards. The road pays out $14,000 a month.

Last night Theo. Smith, familiarly known as "Homer-dish Smith," got too full again, and seeking rest for his tired frame he climbed up the Spies bundry stairway near the REPUBLICAN office. He lost his balance and fell down, cutting his head and causing the blood to flow freely. The officers took him off to the caldhouse where he was attended by Dr.
Drury. He is not believed to be dangerously hurt.

Latest from the Camp.

The following letter from the Deatur hunting party was received this morning:

FISHER, Ark., Nov. 6, 1887.

EDITORS REPUBLICAN.—I desire to inform our friends in Mason county that for the next month our post office address will be Fisher, Poinsett county, Ark. We left Deatur on the 1st inst., over the T.
H. & P. to Paris, Cairo and Vincennes to Cairo and St. Louis, Arkansas and Texas to this place, and our camp is located on a chain of lakes about two miles northwest of Fisher.

We have in our party two hunters, bear hunters, coon hunters, snake charmers and mound diggers, and in fact nearly all of our party have some peculiar genius never suspected by their friends at home, which is surely a development here and no doubt when in full operation will astonish the natives of this Arkansas bottom.

This gang of specialists will be turned loose on the 1st inst., and Mr. Ellis, the doctor, if you could only sit by our campfire and join down their nightly report of discoveries and hair broad escapes, you would think that not more than half of them would have to return to their homes.

Tom Lord is trying his new method of capturing a live deer for a pork. He has not yet been successful, and we are encouraged although he comes into camp late at night and quite tired out. The caution can find out what his mode of operation is by inquiring of Billy McNabb.

History tells us of Mound Builders and several of these mounds are near our camp. We have two mound diggers in our party, who will explore it till they find a future letter.

Dr. C. Chenoweth has pre-empted a white oak ridge about two miles west of our camp, where he says abundant are all manner of wild beasts, and the blood-curdling, hair-raising stories he relates convince us that Forepaugh's menagerie is wintering in that neck of woods. Dr.
C. is getting a little warm under the collar, and you may expect a lively report of his exploits in a few days.

The result of our two days hunt is three deer and two turkeys. We had a fine turkey dinner to-day and the boys are all feeling fine and anticipate a good time.

IRON LOW JACK AND THE GAME.

Last evening two horses belonging to Mr. Elliott got on the Wabash track and took flight when the gravel train came along. They kept running until they fell into a cattle guard where their legs were broken. Both horses had to be killed to put them out of their misery.

A Birthday Poem.

The dinner party given at the Burrows farm, yesterday, east of the city, was attended by about 40 friends of the family.

It was a party celebrating the birthday anniversary of Mr. L. Burrows, the host of the occasion. One of the B's of the "Geometrical Progressive Subscription for the Poor" supposed she had the promise of her brother to be one of her C's, but failed in every effort to get into his possession the 16 necessary subscription lists. She finally resorted to the expedient of presenting him with a beautiful birthday cake, which when carved by the grateful recipient was found to contain in its centre the "pack" of subscription lists enveloped in the following poem.

The brother "took the cake."
"Dear sister," to thee
I send this cake.
Thy natal day to celebrate;
But if thy promise thou dost break Stout fell and die will be thy fate.
Hog-wallowing in thy night shall make A pandemonium out and dread, And fear thy cat's paw shall shake, Thine eyeballs start from out thy head.
Repeat then, ere it be too late,
Take up thy pack and perambulate.
Find thou four gentle kindly "D's," Who in their turn will find four "E's"; With as many "F's" as they can squeeze, And thus thy outraged "B" appease.
Then will progression's shining ray In silver streaks be shown on its way.
Then, too, from "A," the fountain head,
The poor and needy shall be fed.
Oh, listen to the song
Of geometrical progression,
With its rising and its downslings And its infinite succession.
Oh listen, while the muse
Of your soul takes possession, And she'll give you her lay Without fear or selling his property.
(Time—"Come, My Love and Dwell with Me.") Come, my dear, will you go with me?
And all day long you shall be my C.
We will chase our D's from street to street And make D's of the F's we meet.

The Operatic Treat.

for the "Black Hussar" opera opened at Prescott's. The Dunlap-McCaull company of 45 people with their own orchestra will give the opera. Prices: Gallery, 50 cents; side seats, 75 cents; reserved seats, $1.00. The performance will be given Saturday night.

The "Black Hussar" is a veritable masterpiece of romance and pleasing musical composition. The comedy element is abundant, and the story romantic and full of lively and well managed situations.
—Chicago Tribune.

"The Black Hussar" is a success. The story of love, laughter and war runs mer-itly to the music, leaving many bright and delightful numbers to linger in the memory, marred by nothing that could be called dull or slow.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

"The Black Hussar" has proved to be one of the most popular operas of its class. Few excels it in melody and richness of instrumentation. The musical treatment throughout is exceedingly bright and melodious, and many of the numbers are of a peculiarly delightful character.—Chicago Times.

THE CASWELL DIVORCE CASE.

A New and Interesting Chapter—The Wronged Woman Assumes the Offensive.

Ann Mary Caswell, the plaintiff in the celebrated Caswell divorce case is at Monticello, in consultation with her attorney, Mr. Charles Hughes. It will be remembered by our readers that Daniel H. Caswell by fraud and perjury, in 1869, obtained a divorce from his wife, Ann Mary, in the Platt county circuit court, which divorce was set aside by Judge C. B.
Smith seventeen years after the decree was entered on record. This action was subsequently affirmed by the Appellate and Supreme courts of Illinois. The case has attracted the attention of the legal fraternity all over the United States. After overcoming a series of obstacles that would have caused the death of a less resolute woman, supporting herself and daughter with her needle, while she rescued the civilized world for her truant lord, only to find that he had married another woman and had a half dozen illegitimate children; after enduring the laws delay, purposely invoked by her recalcitrant husband in the hope that she would either die or abandon her rights through sheer dispar, the courageous little woman went to Nashville, Tenn., where Caswell now lives, engaged in plumbing, and has brought suit against him for her husband and alimony on the grounds of desertion and adultery. She has obtained a bill of the court on Caswell to pay her attorney fees, and an injunction to prevent him from signing or selling his property. She is there to get a transcript of the record setting aside the divorce obtained by Caswell, and armed with it, coupled with the known adultery of her husband, she will not have much difficulty in procuring a divorce on her own terms.

This match race between Billy G. and S. Montgomery will come off at the Springfield fair grounds to-morrow, the winner to take the gate receipts. The date has been changed from Saturday to Friday.

Mortuary.

The funeral services over the remains of the late Thomas M. Teasdale, accidentally killed in the Wabash yard Monday night, were held this afternoon at the family residence on East Durtee street, conducted by Rev. Dr. Vosburgh, of the Baptist church. The body was taken to Springfield on a Wabash special train at 2 o'clock for burial in Oak Ridge cemetery where the father of the young man, George Teasdale, lies at rest. The relatives and a large number of friends were on the train.

Talk About Natural Gas.

The search in Deatur is temporarily suspended with the hole over 600 feet deep, and no recent accident to the drill.

The J. S. Kins well at Corro Gorio, over 100 feet deep, does not hold out.
The supply of gas for the bank will be short.

The workmen of the gas well, says the Hoopston Chronicle, stopped work Saturday at a depth of about 1,477 feet, the last forty feet being in Trenton rock.
No sign of gas was seen or smelled, and so far as the fulfillment of the hopes of the projectors is concerned, is a dismal failure. The directors have concluded to keep the well piped to furnish water for a system of water works, which is now being talked up.

There was great excitement at Sidney, caused by the announcement that natural gas had been found on the farm of Frank Lehman, one mile and a half south of here. It was not long until a stream of people were taking a morning walk out in that direction, and yesterday morning every wheel in the place was rolling southward. It seems a contractor was boring for water, and had reached a depth of 106 feet without any success, when suddenly a stream of gas burst forth. It was some time before anyone could be found bold enough to touch a match to it, but when they did, a blue sick up forty feet from the ground. Frank was vexed. He wanted water. Some one remarked that it was worth $1,000 to him, but he declared any one could blow it for a nickel if they would furnish him water.
He didn't know what to do with it, had an elephant on his hands. However, it was not long before he began to belch out water, and that of an excellent quality. It is now spouting gas and water alternately.
—Sidney Day-Wap.

SHE WANTED GOLD.

Story of a Romantic Painter and an "Angel."

CHAPTER I. People who lived in Nashville, Tenn., in 1876 have surely not forgotten Anzeli Botonito, the artist. He had an obscure room, a studio, as it termed it, reached by an alley leading off from a street not noted for its respectability.

CHAPTER II. A beautiful woman stood in the door of a small house in an unattractive part of the city. It was summer and the tendrils of a vine waved above her head. There was no carpet in the room, but the walls were adorned with paintings without frames. A man came and kissed the woman's hand.

CHAPTER III. The next night, when he came home, she met him at the door and asked if he had brought the money. "I did not succeed in selling the pictures," he replied.

CHAPTER IV. The next morning the artist came home, she met him at the door and asked if he had brought the money. "I did not succeed in selling the pictures," he replied.

CHAPTER V. The next morning the artist came home, she met him at the door and asked if he had brought the money. "I did not succeed in selling the pictures," he replied.

CHAPTER VI. The next morning the artist came home, she met him at the door and asked if he had brought the money. "I did not succeed in selling the pictures," he replied.

Speaking of the soul reminds me of the body," she cheerfully added.

Time moved slowly and darkly, like a lengthening shadow. One morning, while looking over a newspaper printed in a distant city, Laura found the following: "The once famous Laura Blythe, the wife of an Italian fanatic who imagines that he can paint pictures. It is said that he has dragged her down to a poverty and wretchedness that is fast breaking her heart."

"Laura, you are an angel, and I can not help but feel that what you say is true."

"Al, but you must not struggle against such a fond conviction."

"It is very fondness for its own sake," he responded. "Your uncle has done that if you become the wife of a dashing beggar you shall never enter his house again."

"But," she laughingly replied, "it seems that these words have been spoken so often before. There, now, I don't say that to make you muse. I shall make no difference to me even if I don't go into the house again. Let him leave his money to some one else. I don't want it."

"Will you not think of it when you look at the bare walls?"

"No, for then I can turn to the vine. Now, don't muse again. Let me tell you, once for all, Anzeli, that I have faith in your coming success. Of course, this does not influence my love, but I can not help but believe, can not help but know, that one of these days great men will come and buy your pictures. Let us be happy now. Let not a worrying thought, always so full of misery, wear shadows for our future."

"Laura, you are, in every way, superior to me."

A Murderous Conspiracy Nipped in the Bud.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—Two young men named Emil Wende and Fred Karst were arrested by the police yesterday charged with plotting with others to commit wholesale murder on Friday if the anarchists were hanged. The men had purchased a number of revolvers from a city firm who informed the police, and it was ascertained that these revolvers were to be distributed to the anarchists being hanged. The police are satisfied that the men were parties to a murderous conspiracy.
